Have Some Interview Questions to Ask the Potential Employer

Not only is the employer interviewing your teen...

But your teen should be interviewing the employer!

The employer will usually ask at the end of the interview if you have any questions for him...

Make sure your teen has at least 3 interview questions prepared.

Some Sample Questions Could Be:

- 1) Could you describe your style of management?
- 2) Will I have an opportunity to learn different positions or cross-training?
- 3) What do you like best about working here?
- 4) How long have you been working here?
- 5) In your opinion, how can I be the best employee?
- 6) What do you look for in experience for this position?

And so on....

Managers like talking about their company and also about themselves...so ask away!

It shows that you took the time and effort to do your homework.

More Interview Tips for Teens

Come at least 10 minutes early for the interview - you'll look eager and excited for the job.

Dress appropriately. Khakis and a shirt with a collar is great for guys and a skirt and blouse for ladies. Need a new outfit for that first interview? Take this quick survey to qualify for a Free Target gift card...

Shake hands when you meet your interviewer...firm - not wimpy!

Don't sit until you're asked...and no slouching.

If they offer you a drink such as coffee or water - politely say no thank you.
(You don't need to accidentally spill!)

Thank the interviewer for his or her time - sincerely.

Notice something in the office or on the desk of the interviewer and ask them about it. For example, if you see a golf plaque, ask about golfing...or a picture of kids, are these your kids?

This is a good way to break the ice and be friendly.

RELAX...smile...and answer ALL of the interview questions as best you can.

And lastly, encourage your teen to practice answering interview questions and answers with you or a friend so getting that first job will be a Breeze!
